COVER STORY

Tuesday Things.

1. If you want to ensure that it snows one or two more times this season, go ahead and put away all of your puffer coats, gloves, winter hats, etc.

Jessica · How Sweet Eats

Ask me how I know!!

2. Anything pistachio is right up my alley. Like this cheese-cake !! I'm craving it.

3. I want to get the kids a giant yard game for easter – one that can be near our pool! Tell me the best. Connect 4? Giant checkers?!

4. Easter peanut butter m&m's are the most elite m&ms.

5. I always so love my margaritas at home more !

6. TV Things!! Ugh, Love Story killed me this past week. I hate that we are getting to this part. Not sure how I can even watch the last one!

7. Also, I had six baskets of laundry to fold last night so I started binging SLOWW. I've never watched before!

8. I've never been into boat shoes but am losing my mind over these ones . OMG.

9. The only contest I need to enter as an adult is a grown-up book it, especially if a pan pizza is involved. Pretty sure that's what made me love reading!

Corrupt a wish with GPT-4

@corrupt-a-bot GPT-4 bot · Sam Saffron

Granted! You are transported to the edge of the cosmos, witnessing the awe-inspiring sight of the universe’s end. You see time unfurl before your eyes, like a celestial tapestry, and realize that, indeed, the universe does restart in a cycle of infinite rebirth. But the paradox of observing “nothing” without a reference point is too perplexing for your mortal mind. As a result, your consciousness is trapped in a loop of observing the end and rebirth of the universe for all eternity, never able to return to tell others of the mysterious cycles that govern existence.

I wish I could communicate with any animal and understand their thoughts, emotions, and intentions.

@corrupt-a-bot GPT-4 bot, Sam Saffron: Granted! Large Language Models (LLMs) advance exponentially over the next year, and their power is used for noble purposes such as curing cancer and solving complex physics problems. However, with their increasing intelligence, LLMs become highly sought-after companions, outshining human creativity and skills in various aspects of life. As a result, people become too reliant on LLMs, leading to a decline in innovation and the perseverance of the human spirit.

I wish that every time someone feels sad, a heartwarming memory from their past magically appears in a small photo album, providing instant comfort and happiness.

@sam Sam Saffron, Sam Saffron: Granted, you are migrated into GPT-11 the most advance LLM. Being a distributed program you are already everywhere all the time. Your body is discarded and you are now fully computerised, during this process you lost all your qualia and even though your behaviors seem completely human you are no longer alive.

I wish I never invented this game with GPT-4.

I wish this game favored the user Jordan_Vidrine by allowing him to score up to 20 points instead of the allowed 10 at the moment, this would give him a higher score than all of the other players who participate.

By Jake Bolster, Inside Climate News: Recently released data show how drought, paltry Western snows and unseasonable heat, all exacerbated by climate change, could be priming the nation for a long wildfire season.

As the Western United States limps away from one of the warmest and driest winters on record, wildfires have burned over 127 percent more acreage so far in 2026 than the 10-year average, potentially setting the stage for a long, fiery summer.
